DISTRICT HISTORY

2023-2024 District Accreditation not Recommended

2022-2023 District Accreditation with Warning

SUMMARY

Infinity Generation Preparatory Academy (IGG) is a small private school located in Oklahoma City. It is not eligible to receive State Foundation and Salary Incentive funding, however, it may be able eligible for other government funding such as federal grants. It is part of the Center for Educational Services, a group of youth-focused organizations founded by Gina Darby, the Director of Operations for IGG, and her husband Milen Darby Sr. Other center organizations include the OKYLP Oklahoma Youth Literacy Program; Impact Athletics, Inc.; and KanCacha Kidz, LLC. In Fall 2022, it reported 24 students in grades Pre-K3 to 9th grade.

IGG has been accredited by the Oklahoma State Board of Education since August 26, 2021. On July 28, 2022, the Oklahoma State Board of Education voted to downgrade the School's accreditation status to "Accredited with Warning." The downgrade resulted from repeated non-compliance with Federal Program requirements. The School's participation in the American Rescue Plan ("ARP") Act of 2021 Emergency Assistance to Nonpublic Schools program (“EANS”) was terminated because of application information and data certifications were repeatedly non-compliant with federal rules and regulations. As an accredited school for the 2022-2023 school year, IGG remained a Lindsay Nicole Henry Scholarship-approved school.

In early January 2023, IGG suspended serving students. As a result, all IGG students were required to enroll at a new school mid-year. Furthermore, its leadership did not communicate with the school’s assigned Regional Accreditation Officer from mid-February 2023 until June 2023. Required documentation was not submitted to OSDE’s Department of Accreditation to complete the School’s FY23 Annual Compliance Review. As of July 18, 2023, its website and social media show no information related to enrollment or school operations for the upcoming school year.

For the 2023-2024 school year, OSDE Accreditation and Legal Department recommend revoking IGG’s accreditation.
